

Members of the conservative House Republican Study Committee reached an agreement with the House leadership yesterday to implement a provision that will help enforce the spending limits set by the budget. You can read more about it in today's edition of The Hill.